Y-box-binding protein-1 (YB-1) is a multifunctional RNA-binding protein involved in the post-transcriptional regulation of several genes. A previous study of the role of YB-1 in dermal fibroblasts demonstrated that YB-1 mediates the expression of the pro-fibrotic cytokine transforming growth factor (TGF)-beta. The goal of this study was to determine whether YB-1 regulates the expression of its own gene product. A new antisense oligonucleotide (YB-1AS) was used to inhibit the expression of YB-1 in human dermal fibroblasts. The results demonstrate that the expression of YB-1 in human dermal fibroblasts was independent of active TGF-beta signaling. YB-1 inhibition did not alter the production or secretion of TGF-beta. However, inhibition of YB-1 expression significantly reduced the expression of Col1a1 and Col3a1, the major fibroblast-specific collagen isoforms, in
